

Joseph Anderson

Joseph Anderson, son of Andrew R. and Nelsina Anderson was born in Lehi, Utah, January 4, 1879.

Receiving his educational training at Lehi District School and the Brigham Young University, he taught school at Vernal, Utah; B.Y.U. Training School, Provo, Utah; and at Lehi District School.

He married Roseltha Boyer of Springville, Utah, June 22, 1904. Five children were born to them. His first wife died November 16, 1944. October 15, 1946, he married Regena Jensen of Brigham City, Utah, in the Salt Lake Temple.

He held many public positions. He was postmaster of Lehi about nine years; first president of Lehi poultrymen organization; President of the Utah Poultry Producers' Association; President of the Utah State Farm Bureau; Member of the Water Storage Commission; Chairman of Drought Relief Committee for the State of Utah; and general contractor and builder.

He was instrumental in securing funds which helped the cooperative milk producers, the Utah honey producers, and the consumers cooperative of Utah.

He has always been an active member of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. He served in all of the Priesthood organizations from Deacon to High Priest. He acted as Counselor in the Bishopric of the Lehi First Ward, and was one of the High Councilmen in the Lehi Stake of Zion at its organization. He is now a High Councilman in the Wells Stake of Zion, Chairman of the Agriculture Committee of the Pioneer Region, Chairman of the Wells Stake Leather Project, and is still active exploring the unknown and developing the treasures of the earth.
